

First, use the search engine to select the document you want to subscribe to.

Results:

When subscribing to a document published by someone else, this document will appear in your own library ('My Documents'), then you won't be required to search again if you want to access this document later.

If the document is public, you can directly download it from the search result area.

Results:

However, you can still subscribe to add it in your library. You have to validate the blockchain transaction and pay the associated gas (a very small fee).

If the document is restricted, the only way to download it is to subscribe.

You may have to pay subscription fees on top of the transaction gas, if the author set a subscription price when publishing.